The author(s) in consideration of the publication of the above named manuscript understand and agree that:

♣ Copyright in the article will remain jointly with the owner of the copyright and the Publisher. By submitting an article to the conference, the owner of the copyright grants the publishers with a license to publish the article.

♣ The Author(s) warrants that he is the owner of all rights of copyright in the article. Where the author subsequently publishes the article, the author is requested to acknowledge the article appeared in the book of proceedings.

♣ The Author(s) will indemnify and defend the Publisher against any claim, demand or recovery against the Publisher by reason of any violation of any proprietary right or copyright, or because of any libellous or scandalous matter contained in the Manuscript.

♣ The Publisher will have the right to edit the work for the original edition and for any revision, provided that the meaning of the text is not materially altered.

♣ This Agreement represents the entire understanding between the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof and this Agreement supersedes all previous representations, understandings of agreements, oral or written, between the parties with respect to subject matter hereof and cannot be modified except by a written instrument signed by the parties hereto.
Preface

Today, few aspects of life are not touched in one way or another by law. Understanding law can be a challenge to understand and put into practice.

Law encompasses multifarious developments in law. As society grows unfathomably complex, more rules are passed to presumably manage human behaviour. The European Union proposes and enacts new “laws at a breath-taking pace” and other countries are not to be outpaced. In the US, about 40,000 state laws took effect at the start of 2012, from “getting abortions in New Hampshire, learning about gays and lesbians in California, getting jobs in Alabama and even driving golf carts in Georgia.”

Add to this growing body of state laws are local and Federal regulations, as well as international and regional treaties.

Winston Churchill arguing against the increasing regulations of industry and commerce by the post-war Labour Government stated, “If you make 10,000 regulations you destroy all respect for the law.”

There are so many rules that legal specialists know no more than a tiny fragment of the laws. As the number of laws is enacted, so is their inanity. It remains poorly understood by many. Most of them are written in incomprehensible way that can make it difficult even for savvy practitioners and researchers to maintain their professional currency in the field.

This book is committed to making the learning and understanding of the law simple, engaging and interesting. Law & Practice: Critical Analysis and Legal Reasoning is a collection of tools for thinking about legal questions. It contains a great deal of clear and authoritative information that leads to challenging discussions, stimulate critical thinking and helps to learn the legal laws better. Written by the world’s leading legal academics, the book gathers current national and global legal developments, and fills important gaps in available knowledge about international law. The coverage is not exhaustive and leaves room for continued discussion and reading.

This book would not have been possible without the contributions of all the authors, dedicated editorial staff, Thailand Convention and Exhibition Bureau, Tilleke & Gibbins and Reviewers who helped improve the book. Thank you.

I hope that you will enjoy the book and find it useful.
